

MAGA! Make Aynayim Great Again

Happy to share that I am on day 15 of my journey to 90 days! So far it's been pretty easy.

I confess that I am using artificial motivation as a rocket booster in my recovery. I made a deal that if I reach 90 days, I'll buy myself an expensive piece of fitness equipment (I'm a fitness buff). It's not really in my budget, but, what the heck, YOLO right?

Anyway, will post my origin story in the intro forum topic when I get the chance. It's pretty long so will need to come in installations.

Have a good shabbos y'all :-)

Once you hit a total of 90 days including the days you had a setback calculate your percentage for the last 90 days and not for all of your days. It will give you a better picture of where you are holding and it will allow you to reach 100%.

Cumulative Stats

Current Streak: 1 loss

Total Wins: 85 days

Total Losses: 6 days

Winning Percentage: 93.41%

Today's positive action towards recovery:

pushups for stress relief.

was triggered yesterday by some stupid April fools nonsense (on LinkedIn of all places). Wasn't looking for trouble. Did some urge surfing and survived yesterday, but caved today:-)

I guess I'm just not that motivated to take it to the next level:-/ it's so easy to rationalize an occasional relapse, plus the benefits of quitting are subtle but the sweet escape of porn and masturbation is anything but subtle.

If my wife knew about my addiction, I wouldn't need to be so secretive about my recovery efforts. I wish I could join a chabura or go to SA or something, but that's not possible without her finding out Meh. Still spinning my wheels at the moment. Anyway, tomorrow is a new day.

Time2WinSorry to hear about your current relapse...

Have you considered joining the Vaad?

Many of the guys gain from the chabura/oilam aspect of it.

Have you considered joining the Vaad?

There are different time slots (with more on the way!) that may enable you to join without compromising on your secrecy.

Many of the guys gain alot from the oilam/chavershaft aspect of it.

Reach out to me or Shem for more details.

This is the problem with flat-Earth.

If you can see the dangling rope, go ahead and grab it Brother.

Hope all is well.

30 minutes of cardio for stress relief been struggling since my last post. Been playing whack-a-mole trying to close off access points to porn. Seems like every time I cut one off and have a clear path to 90 days ahead of me, I (without seeking one) encounter a new access point in one way or another. It's frustrating living in such a digitally connected world. The internet is everywhere

As of yesterday, things are pretty well locked up. For now anyway...

Oh boy. Whack-a-mole. Do I know that feeling or what.

What I've noticed is that once I start going looking it's already too far down the slippery slope. Whether or not I find access, once I start looking I'll continue until I get it and reset the binge-bust cycle. Not every time I start looking does that happen, but too often.

How to stop starting looking?

One attitude that I've had occasional success with is recognizing that the internet is everywhere and I can get access whenever I want. So if I can get access whenever, this device here is not an opportunity that needs to be seized. It's just another device, that I don't need to "just check" if the loophole is there. Doesn't work every time, but works some of the time.

Other options might be thinking creatively to remove opportunities. I mean things like using the internet in public places, not bringing your phone into bed or the bathroom etc.

Hatzlacha!
