Welcome! This page is where I'm going to be checking in to give myself some responsibility for the initial start of my 90 day journey and beyond. Feel free to comment and dish out advice "I'm all ears." looking forward to achieving 90 days with everyone!

Day 28: Almost there! (30). today I was thinking back of the times I used to be in the vicious cycle of watching porn for hours and hours. then smoking and drinking to numb the guilt and pain I would be in afterwards. that was probably a bad idea because now I'm triggered (lol.) either way I asked chat gpt for a good line to help me through my triggers and this is what it came up with:

"I am choosing to break free from PMO, not only for myself, but for the love and connection I will share with my future partner. I am clearing my mind body and soul to become the person I am destined to be-someone worthy of the love I seek and in alignment with my higher purpose. every moment I resist strengthens my resolve to be present, grounded, and fully capable of embracing the love and spiritual growth I'm meant for."

not too shabby i gotta say I hope one day I can write my own, till then KOMT!

I fell,

I have mixed feelings on one side i'm free, free from the count, free from constantly feeling like "is today the day i fall?" free from constantly checking in every day. free from all this crap. "I'm sick, I'm addicted, i'm broken, I'm a pervert, I need help, I need to reach out."

free from it all...

but i know it wont last it's only for a few fleeting seconds, I need to make a decision.

do i binge? just go down a rabbit hole of just constantly giving in because " once I'm down I can just stay down." what different dose it make stay down for one hour or one year, who cares?!

its not like there's a cure- 29 days, 99 days, its all the same, I've been to both ends.

eventually we all fall, it just part of the human dilemma, were not angels no matter how much I want to be.

or do get up with the same false hope i gave myself 29 days ago "this time it will be different, look at all these people in the same situation you're in. your part of a team!"

we all fight our own battles its not like I can give it to someone else, maybe we can be side to side but at the end of the day it comes down to me.

im so tired, so fatigued I don't have the strength especially not for more disappointment.

I used to blame others: my parents for not showing enough unconditional love, my Rebbi'm for beating me mercilessly for a couple of years just because I couldnt read Hebrew, that one kid in 8th grade who showed me how to masturbate and came in the same room as me and lastly g-d for just watching all this from right next to me. I can never cry and pray like I did so many years ago and you didn't help me then?! why would you help me now?

I just want to die.

-because only in TheGrave will I find the peace I hope for.

Every fall on your journey - even though of course, that is not how we should plan it - is a stepping stone for reaching greater heights. Nothing you have gained in these 29 days is lost. Learn, think, analyze what happened, ask questions such as, were you white-knuckling, over-obsessing or overly focused on counting days... reflect on what can be improved and move on.

BTW, I would not be so certain that the grave would be that much more peaceful. Food for Boy do I relate to everything you wrote... it's sooo painful. I know exactly how you feel. (See my threads in my signature where I've expressed my anger towards Hashem...).

What has helped me is to stop focusing on the streak. It's really not so important. It's the inner change that changes you as a person until you'll grow to appreciate and perhaps even be excited about the challenges.

One thing I don't agree with is that everyone eventually falls, which makes you think "is today the day I will fall", it's simply not true. I also used to think so and it took me years to rewire my brain to understand that no! It's possible to be clean from P and M forever. Take a look at HHM's thread and you'll see he is a normal human being and clean for ten years. And some others here on GYE as well who are clean for many years, and I'm sure many other yidden around the globe. I'm talking about ordinary, genuine Yidden.

And iyH one day you and I will be amongst them!

Stay strong my brother... breath deeply and ~~start again~~ keep going! It's just another small hump on the way to grateness!

With love and admiration,

ok, I'm not sure were to start, I guess I want to apologize for my outburst from last week I really didn't have the intention of hurting anyone with my negative outlook on PMO and GYE, but its easy to forget there other people that can be effected behind your keyboard...sorry.

moving on, b"h been feeling better I want to thank everyone who reached out and gave me chizuk it really helped knowing I have supporters ready to swoop in a time of need. also want to give a public shoutout to yosefms for the (life)changing reading material it really helped me put this challenge into perspective.

I did have some slips but nothing too major taking second glances of woman or spacing out. over all I'm happy to put all the hardcore stuff behind me and trying to invest in myself. like going shopping, cooking learning guitar etc.

for sure! who is r shoimeh? also fair point on the goyish niggunem. that what my original idea was now that I don't have Spotify, but its true music is the language of the soul so might as well keep it kosher.
