

Chazak Amenu's climb

Posted by Chazak Amenu - 28 Feb 2010 02:09

I am an orthodox 14(turn 15 march 30) years old who home schools, i have come to the conclusion myself that homeschooling has nothing to do with my addiction because I don't have time to view porn during school hours do to homework. I first saw porn when I was nearing the end of 6th grade. I saw it accidentally while doing a book report for class. The character in the book was also the name of the porn star and pictures of her popped up. The first time i saw it I immediately closed down but i was curious and had just hit puberty so i opened it up again and looked. I did not know what s-x was at the time and only looked at nude pictures for a while but then I began looking for videos and could not find any for a while. I contented myself with opening multiple tabs at time viewing hundreds of non clothed females. One day I downloaded a virus thereby forcing my dad to buy a new computer. While at the store he bought me a laptop which until recently I never used because I did not want to betray my parents trust further. I found out the filters password and used it. I recently changed the password so I don't know it but no one knows it so hopefully that does not become a problem. There are still two other computers without filters. No one knows about my addiction not even my twin brother. I don't feel clean and I feel like I need to go to the Mikvah but I don't know how to go by asking without people becoming suspicious. I feel really bad because I have a slight break before learning Gemmara and a few times I have watched porn right before learning. I hope I can stop the addiction early in my life and continue to become a good Jew!

thanks, so today if completed will be my 21st day clean. I had a REALLY close call the other night and i saw some pictures (they were not clear, they were ancient photos) and struggled between ignoring them and looking at them for about 30 seconds, and i finally shut the page and did very well the rest of the night so i was pretty proud of myself that was the second time i had really faced a major challenge in this current streak. the first time was on shabbos when i had about an hour before some friends came over and i told myself that i might as well m-bate because i wouldnt be able to hold out. but i shook my head and yelled at myself and said "come on! in an hour you will be so proud you did not forfeit!" and i didnt it was a great victory because that was a time slot i had always struggled with. have a great shabbos everyone!

Than you so much for replying! i know i used to be on the website but i think now that i have mature a little and i really am looking at this more realistically i figure it was time to post again (though for less). I might try and post one more time before the chagim, because i know how hard yom tovim are in general with long afternoons or even just small time slots before getting together with friends or family. but i would really like to keep clean because obviously it would be hypocritical to fall on a day when i am being judged for doing things that are going to tip the scales out of my favor! anyway i will make sure i have friends coming over or me going to their houses. and def wanna take it one day at a time which is why i was hesitant to post about the future but i always think its good to get thing "out" there and written so i dont forget and so i remain accountable. thank you all! ksiva vchasima tova!

Beautiful! Hodu laShem ki tov! Please be sure to do what you can to enjoy this 39th day as much as you may enjoy your 3009th day, iy"H. There really is no difference between them - both are a chessed and the same brocha.

One geshmak and REAL day at a time, like you said it so well above!

Un ah Gitteh, zeeeseh yontiff to you and yours!

If i stay clean the rest of today and tomorrow i will have broken my all time record high clean streak! and it feels really good also i am better off because i am nervous about my psats so i wont only be focused on that (which IS a good thing cause the less i think about staying clean the better cus thoughts dont start to plague me) hopefully next update will be a really good one!
